Not the proposed 24 hours.	We strongly believe it to be unachievable to give no less than 24 hours notice. As a result, spray contractors will have less accurate time frames of spraying and therefore have a negative impact on the notification process for both parties. Having a 12 hour notice period gives sprayers a tighter window to provide more accurate indication of when spraying will ACTUALLY occur. Creating more accurate workflows and timely notifications. Anything outside of that will create cutting of corners and excessive notifications which will give notifications a spam like nature and deem them useless. 12 hours is far more practical for both parties
