1 Introduction

The Bay of Plenty Region has a dynamic Treaty landscape due to the large number of iwi that have settled or are settling Treaty of Waitangi claims.

Council has statutory responsibilities for Treaty implementation including statutory acknowledgements (in resource consent and planning processes), joint management agreements, protocols and managing co-governance fora.

We currently administer three Treaty co-governance arrangements:

- Rotorua Lakes (Rotorua Te Arawa Lakes Strategy Group);
- Rangitaiki River (Rangitaiki River Forum); and
- Kaituna River (Te Maru o Kaituna – Kaituna River Authority).

The workshop was to enable free and frank discussions on the Treaty landscape with a particular focus on our role in Treaty co-governance.

2 Overview

Chairman Leeder introduced the workshop and highlighted that this workshop is a continuation of the strategic issues co-governance discussion in December. He also noted the forthcoming Treaty symposium for Treaty settlements being planned for the 21st April 2017.

Staff spoke to a presentation which outlined:

- Status of settlements in the region including Ngāti Rangitahi negotiations and Tauranga Moana.
- Update on the Marine and Coastal Area (Takutai Moana) Act (MACA), noting that the application deadline is early April 2017.
- Some of the key implications of Treaty Co-Governance
- The importance of building and maintaining enduring relationships
- What's on the horizon in the Treaty space.

Councillors were advised of the proposal to review and renew the relationship protocol with Te Uru Taumatua for Ngāi Tūhoe to address the requirements of Te Urewera Act 2014.

Attendance

Cr Tahana arrived at approximately 9:00 am.

Crs Bruning and Thompson arrived at approximately 9.30 am.

3 Discussion

Councillors had a robust discussion on the challenges of co-governance, future funding implications and need for strong partnerships/relationships with iwi.

Councillors requested briefings be provided to members for co-governance meetings. There was comment on the importance of territorial local authority members also understanding the importance of co-governance and the need for iwi members to also receive regular briefings.

Councillors discussed the need to work more closely with other territorial local authorities and potentially looking at a shared service for Maori policy.

4 Conclusion

Councillors came back to the three strategic questions:

1. How do we ensure settlement documents align with community visions?
2. What role for co-governance entities "post-document"?
3. How do we manage resource requirements, increasing expectations, more settlements?

Councillors discussed the importance of ensuring the community understood why Treaty Settlements were occurring (a role for the Crown).

It was noted that particular staff are busy providing strategic advice to support Crown agencies such as the Office of Treaty Settlements and the Ministry for the Environment as well as staff from the territorial local authorities. The Māori Policy team are currently stretched across a number of areas as expectations continue to grow.

Councillors asked that Maori policy staff time be prioritised for BOPRC outcomes delivery.

Councillors thanked staff for this presentation and indicated that the further action was to continue to provide treaty settlement update reports to future Komiti Maori meetings.

The workshop closed at 10.15 am.

Staff spoke to a presentation which outlined:

- Status of settlements in the region including Ngāti Rangitahi negotiations and Tauranga Moana.
- Update on the Marine and Coastal Area (Takutai Moana) Act (MACA), noting that the application deadline is early April 2017.
- Some of the key implications of Treaty Co-Governance
- The importance of building and maintaining enduring relationships
- What's on the horizon in the Treaty space.

Councillors were advised of the proposal to review and renew the relationship protocol with Te Uru Taumatua for Ngāi Tūhoe to address the requirements of Te Urewera Act 2014.

Attendance

Cr Tahana arrived at approximately 9:00 am.

Crs Bruning and Thompson arrived at approximately 9.30 am.

3 Discussion

Councillors had a robust discussion on the challenges of co-governance, future funding implications and need for strong partnerships/relationships with iwi.

Councillors requested briefings be provided to members for co-governance meetings. There was comment on the importance of territorial local authority members also understanding the importance of co-governance and the need for iwi members to also receive regular briefings.

Councillors discussed the need to work more closely with other territorial local authorities and potentially looking at a shared service for Maori policy.

4 Conclusion

Councillors came back to the three strategic questions:

1. How do we ensure settlement documents align with community visions?
2. What role for co-governance entities "post-document"?
3. How do we manage resource requirements, increasing expectations, more settlements?

Councillors discussed the importance of ensuring the community understood why Treaty Settlements were occurring (a role for the Crown).

It was noted that particular staff are busy providing strategic advice to support Crown agencies such as the Office of Treaty Settlements and the Ministry for the Environment as well as staff from the territorial local authorities. The Māori Policy team are currently stretched across a number of areas as expectations continue to grow.

Councillors asked that Maori policy staff time be prioritised for BOPRC outcomes delivery.

Councillors thanked staff for this presentation and indicated that the further action was to continue to provide treaty settlement update reports to future Komiti Maori meetings.

The workshop closed at 10.15 am.

1 Introduction

The Bay of Plenty Region has a dynamic Treaty landscape due to the large number of iwi that have settled or are settling Treaty of Waitangi claims.

Council has statutory responsibilities for Treaty implementation including statutory acknowledgements (in resource consent and planning processes), joint management agreements, protocols and managing co-governance fora.

We currently administer three Treaty co-governance arrangements:

- Rotorua Lakes (Rotorua Te Arawa Lakes Strategy Group);
- Rangitaiki River (Rangitaiki River Forum); and
- Kaituna River (Te Maru o Kaituna – Kaituna River Authority).

The workshop was to enable free and frank discussions on the Treaty landscape with a particular focus on our role in Treaty co-governance.
